

NSW Cancer Conference 2022 Conference Report

Name: Zoe Welham

Position & Affiliation: PhD candidate, University of Sydney, Faculty of Medicine and Health

Full Reference: Zoe Welham, Mark Molloy, Alexander Engel, Jun Li. The Microbiome in Colorectal polyps

Presentation Type: Poster

I attended the 2022 NSW Cancer Conference. I anticipate that the experience of presenting a poster of my work at the NSW Cancer Conference will benefit my research by allowing me to meet people conducting similar research in order to exchange ideas and useful advice for experimental research and data analysis. There were a few presenters who were engaged in similar areas of research to me, and I enjoyed discussing our research.

Overall, I found the presentations on Survivorship and psycho-oncology to be particularly interesting as it maps to some previous studies of mine and reminds me of why the community's research is so important. I also appreciated the inclusion of social justice issues in medicine and research.

I was also interested in the number of presentations on telomeres in cancer, it was novel and interesting work.